GLAMOR GIRLS:
TV VS. HOLLYWOOD

RED SMITH VIEWS
WALCOTT-MARCIANO
CHAMPIONSHIP FIGHT
It came as a surprise—nay, a shock—when the Association of Radio and TV News Directors announced it would hold a five-day TV News Seminar later this month in cooperation with Northwestern University’s Medill School of Journalism.

Journalism is an essential in TV newscasting, of course, but haven’t the boys overlooked the importance of dramatic ability and sartorial elegance? Shouldn’t the directors and Medill professors be joined by representatives of the American Academy of Dramatic Art and perhaps the Tailors’ Guild?

Local television news commentators, bless their larded larynxes, have been doing their best to keep up with the network smoothies—Handsome John Cameron Swayze, Sincere Douglas Edwards, and Casual Dave Garroway. The networks, as always, have set the standard, and the local lads must be handsomer, sincerer or casualer if they want to make a dent on the audience.

On newspapers, no one cares much what a reporter looks like or how he dresses. Shirtsleeves and loosened necktie are standard attire in most City Rooms, and no one questions a tobacco-chewing, messy-haired, raspy-voiced reporter so long as he does his job.

The ideal newscaster should be a good reporter AND be acceptable to the public. Such men are rare, and the networks have grabbed them up. The National Association of Radio and TV News Directors, then, must either teach the fundamentals of journalism to men experienced in appearing before an audience, or teach reporters the fundamentals of TV dramatics.

It would be easier, and we believe better in the long run, to train reporters in television techniques. Relating the news to viewers is a vital task, and one that requires fast editorial judgment on occasion. Such judgment comes only from experience.
GE Theater, telefilm series which substituted for FRED WARING while the Pennsylvanians were on tour, will also replace the Waring show this summer. RAY MILLAND entering the TV sweepstakes next fall as star of a new telefilm series. Network and time not yet announced. NBC plans an audition film starring CELESTE HOLM within month.

ANDREWS SISTERS seeking an idea for their own TV show. They'd prefer a situation comedy, but haven't come up with anything yet that would also allow them to sing. DANNY KAYE, with only one or two movies a year now, thinks he needs TV to retain his mass audience. His high income tax bracket and high asking-price are reported holding off interested sponsors. Signing of RAY BOLGER and DANNY THOMAS will bolster ABC talent ranks.

Gillette expanding its Cavalcade of Sports on NBC with pickups of 10 Saturday afternoon horse races from Eastern tracks, starting April 18. In a tie-in with the Damon Runyon Cancer Fund, the razor company will contribute a pure-bred pony to be auctioned off among viewers each week. All money derived goes to the fund.

Exploits of Congressional Medal of Honor winners will be dramatized in a new film documentary series, set for a fall premiere. TV's "two Jacks," CARSON and CARTER, returning in the fall. Carson will play a good-natured idler in a telefilm series, while Carter is to emcee a variety program.

EDDIE FISHER will be assisted by DON AMECEE and AXEL STORDAHL'S orchestra in the new show starting April 29 on NBC. This replaces Those Two on Wednesdays and Fridays. New York's American Museum of Natural History completed arrangements with CBS for a network program starting May 10 which replaces Omnibus. Latter show is due back in the fall. CBS using feature films to replace ERNIE KOVACS on Tuesday nights. When MILTON BERLE, chief competition at that time, goes on vacation, CBS may attempt to break in a new live show.

NBC's American Inventory, in collaboration with the Alfred P. Sloan Foundation, to be used henceforth to showcase public service programs for possible commercial sponsorship. First on the agenda: a crime detection series, to be produced with the aid of top Eastern universities. JEROME THOR, invited to star in a Hollywood movie, leaving Foreign Intrigue. DRAW PEARSON may wind up on CBS. The network is mulling a pickup of his new TV show.
PUBLICISTS say DINAH SHORE is to snag $25,000 weekly for her fort-night singing stay at a Las Vegas hostelry in July . . . NBC is scan-ning GEORGE GOBEL as a TV comic recruit; he was on Toast of the Town recently and is now playing a swank supper room locally. One of his gags is, "I've got a clause in my contract that says I can't read any other clauses in it" . . . BRODERICK CRAWFORD wanted $2700 and top-billing for a guest appearance on Life of Riley with BILL BENDIX. Fee was satisfactory but not the lead-billing, so he's out.

LYNN BARI will join with BARRY NELSON as supporting tal-ent for JOAN CAULFIELD in the new My Favorite Husband series . . . ANN SOTHERN'S press agent reports she is eager to make the country's lassies conscious of "Specs-Appeal," so they won't shun their glasses for fear of lessened sex appeal; says she coined the phrase after volumes of fan mail questioning her own eye-glasses in Private Secretary.

The three big networks are bidding for General Electric's BING CROSBY program which will start in the fall. Their inducements: top time spots on the air . . . EDDIE CANTOR shared a dressing room with MARTIN AND LEWIS during the special 100th Comedy Hour show. To disguise the weight he has put on around his waist he wore an elastic band. "Wonder if this will show?" he asked. Lewis spread his robe, showing a brace around his knee and another one over his back, saying sadly, "If they do, then I'm dead too."

Another sign of impending major motion picture studios' for-ay into telefilms is current slashing of costly talent rosters to facilitate lower-budgeted TV filming . . . Ris-ing labor scales here have zoomed costs of telefilms some 20 percent in past year, with revenues from new stations only partially offsetting the rise. Only a few pro-ducers are in break-even or better status.

Studio One, long a Manhattan creation, may join the westward migration to Hollywood next autumn . . . ABC's Album series will emanate from here May 3 and 10, splitting Tale of Two Cities in half-hour shows . . . MARTIN AND LEWIS may telecast their May 31 program from aboard 'the Queen Elizabeth in New York harbor, prior to sailing for the coronation . . . To lure larger studio audiences, KLAC-TV here is ending the under-12 age ban, not even barring babes-in-arms. This welcome-to-all will likely be copied by other stations as visitors become scarcer.

VAN JOHNSON, whose MGM contract expires in December, is rehearsing a song-and-dance act for TV in the fall. KAY THOMPSON is tutoring him, with a preview break-in con-templicated at the London Palladium during the coronation . . . Now that all the bills are tallied, RCA's total bill for sponsoring the Academy Awards last month was over a quarter of a million dollars.
Jack Webb, a professional actor who learned about realism as an Air Force B-26 pilot during the Second World War, has made it pay off as star and director of Dragnet, the NBC thriller which plays weekly to some 38,000,000 faithful viewers across the country.

Now in his early 30's, Webb has come to represent for the American public the ideal of the regular police detective, as contrasted with the "private eye," and with real police methods, as contrasted with fictional melodrama.

His slim frame—he's six feet tall and weighs 165 pounds—and his clipped underplaying of scenes has become as much of a trademark to the American public as the stamp of "Mark VII" Productions, which terminates his show.

He plays every television scene as if it were a real police case.

He Achieves the Unbelievable

Webb has achieved the unbelievable for fictional detective work—a show which is pleasing alike to public, press, police and even penitentiary inmates. But success wasn’t achieved without struggles and it’s maintained by tireless attention to detail.

For Webb, who had played radio private detectives in San Francisco, his real career began one day on the Hollywood set of the motion picture, He Walked By Night, in which he played a police lieutenant.

Idly, he asked Sergeant Marty Wynn, of the Los Angeles Police Department, technical advisor on the film, about the possibility of doing a radio program based on actual police file cases.

Wynn liked the idea, so Webb collected information from the police department, developed characters and a format and cut an audition record for

In less than a month, Webb assembled a top-notch staff, selected stories and cast, pushed production at breakneck speed and beat the deadline. He’s been clicking along at that rate ever since.

The Mark VII trademark was “dreamed up over coffee” by Webb and no special meaning. The use of the co-producer Michael Meshekoff and has hammer and stencil is based “somewhat” on the use of a hammer and gong to open J. Arthur Rank’s British productions.

To date, Webb’s production unit has turned out 60 episodes, each using 12,000 feet of film. It’s the equivalent of 20 feature-length motion pictures, all made in a shooting time of less than nine months!

Working at the Walt Disney Studios

Webb and Smith quietly question a suspect amid surroundings keyed to reality.

NBC officials. They offered him a sustaining spot.

Then, “hat in hand,” Webb went to C. B. Horrall, then Los Angeles police chief, and asked for his cooperation.

Police Promise Help

“You’re on the right track,” Horrall told him. “You don’t make heroes of cops and you’re reflecting the day-to-day drudgery of police work.” He promised his cooperation and the radio show was launched successfully.

The idea of the television show originated in 1951, with the president of the cigarette firm sponsoring the radio program. Webb made up a sample film, which clicked. On December 5, the order came for 13 episodes with the first to be shown Jan. 1.

near Hollywood, Webb’s production unit is now holding to a rigid episode-in-three-days schedule. Webb not only directs, but plays the lead role of Sergeant Joe Friday.

For a typical episode, he and writer John Robinson will pore over case histories furnished them by three policemen, from the Los Angeles police files. When the two have agreed on a case, they prepare a script for the radio show, which later is adapted for television use.

The script is submitted to the police for technical corrections. The City Attorney’s office then checks for legal implications. A policeman from the appropriate detail — robbery, homicide, forgery, etc.—stands by during the filming to check on authenticity.
Dragnet is filmed on a budget of about $30,000 for each episode, which holds cast, sets and wasted scenes to a minimum.

Webb’s present schedule enables him to make four episodes in two weeks, then lay off for two weeks. As a result, he has two weeks free out of each month for careful planning and editing.

He makes considerable use of Teleprompters to avoid “fluffed” lines and wasted film.

Moreover, Webb knows just what he wants to do with Dragnet. The show is intended to entertain and to sell products, but Webb says there “never will be anything in Dragnet that I wouldn’t want my own two kids to see.”

Each Story Accurate

Furthermore, there is no dramatic license taken with the cases. Each is related factually, but in such a manner that even the criminal would not recognize his own case. Webb is dedicated to the idea that the show should do nothing to harm a man who already has paid legally for his misdeed.

The success of Dragnet isn’t based on violence, a milestone for such programs. In all the episodes filmed to date, Webb says, only 15 bullets have been discharged and there have been but three fights and a half-dozen punches.

Webb says flatly that the format is what the public wants and the popularity of Dragnet supports his view. He receives about 400 letters weekly and estimates that each letter represents similar views of 10,000 lookers.

He not only answers each letter, but he keeps a file of what viewers have to say. If 10 letters suggest a certain change, Webb will consider making it, on the grounds that this may represent the feeling of 100,000 listeners.

If 10 letters complain that the background music is too high, for example, or that Webb’s voice is too soft, he will order prompt changes.

In the intensively competitive world of television, the system has paid off by keeping Dragnet consistently third among all TV programs. Yet Dragnet serves the public by realistically bringing home the fact that crime does not pay.

This, too, is one of Webb’s aims, which is why he is proud of the letters which pour in from police authorities praising the work of the program. The following letter from an attorney, quoted in part, is virtually typical:

“Not only do you provide wholesome entertainment, but you are doing more for law enforcement than anyone else in the entertainment field.

“As a former FBI agent, deputy city attorney and prosecuting attorney, I’m particularly grateful for the public service you are rendering.”

For Webb, such notes make the Dragnet show really worth all the effort he puts into it.

Webb takes to a 9th story window ledge in downtown Los Angeles to thwart a suicide.
Marciano Picked Over Walcott In Week’s Big Televised Fight

ROCKY Marciano, a peaceable, law-abiding young man who once aspired to be a catcher for the Chicago Cubs, is going to do a spot of pitching for the Chicago fans Friday evening. Along about 9:30 Chicago time, he will throw his high hard one to schoolboy Joe Walcott, and that gentle old gentleman’s kindly countenance will thereupon be suffused by resin.

That’s what it says here. That’s what it’s got to say here. By all the laws of logic and the Marquis of Queensberry, not to mention those of the National Boxing Association, the Illinois State Athletic Commission, and gravity, Marciano must win when he makes his first defense of the heavyweight championship of the world in Chicago Stadium against the elderly gaffer from whom he won the title.

It Looks Like a Knockout

It says here that Marciano will smite Walcott in the expression and leave him for dead around the eighth or ninth round. Wonderful and implausible old critic though he is, the venerated Jersey sire didn’t have it in him last September to stand off the young guy whom he was whipping when they came out for the thirteenth round in Philadelphia.

He was then the oldest heavyweight champion since Achilles outpointed Hector, and now he is six months older. Marciano figures to catch him sooner this time than he did then.

There are, however, two factors that will be in the minds of the millions who tune their receivers in on the doings in Chicago’s big bloodpit. One is the fact that Marciano is a crude boxer who needs steady work to keep his reflexes operating. If he has rusted in a half-year of idleness, he might not be able to lick a reasonably agile curate.

First Bout Unforgettable

The other point is that Walcott did come so desperately close to beating Rocky at his best. Nobody who saw that first fight will ever forget it. Marciano had seemed a mortal cinch before the fight, and then in the first round he looked like somebody’s mortal sin. His aged playfellow walked out with a left hook that simply couldn’t miss, moved the awkward youngster about as he pleased, knocked him down, and had ringsiders looking around for the cops to arrest the mountebank who had fed this tender child to that snagle-toothed old tiger.

As the match wore on, though, Marciano’s superb strength and condition asserted themselves. After 12 rounds that would have drained most men dry, he still had the power to drop Walcott for keeps with one punch.

That's why he is rated the best one-punch hitter ever seen through these bifocals. Not even punchers like Jack Dempsey and Joe Louis stiffened many opponents with one blow, but this guy did it after a riot squad had worked he is champion of the world.

Shortly after he won the title, he was asked whether he'd been able to sleep that night in Philadelphia after beating Walcott. He grinned self-consciously and said of course he hadn't.

"I went back and dozed off around midnight," he said, "and when I woke up I didn't know nothing. I didn't know where I was, but I had a kind of feel-him over with a rubber hose for three-quarters of an hour.

It is probable, too, that Rocky will be a better and more resolute fighter now than ever before, simply because ing something good had happened. Then I remembered."

All of a sudden he remembered. He was heavyweight champion of the world. Oh, yes, sure, that was it.

MAY SOON OUTDAZZLE HOLLYWOOD

TELEVISION may now lack the glamor, "oomph" or "it" of Hollywood's super-productions, but TV surely will acquire it within the next couple of years and then go on to outdazzle theater screens.

These are the blunt views of Durward "Bud" Graybill, famed photographer of filmdom's stars for more than two decades and winner of many international camera awards. Graybill, whose fees range as high as $1250 for a single color photograph, last year chose to forsake the movies in order to launch a new career in television. And he's confident that his chosen medium will soon put glamor high on the list of essentials.

"It's obvious that television needs glamor to provide complete entertainment," Graybill explained. "Westerns, comedies, mysteries and human-interest features have established themselves in television.

"But until TV can develop smashing romantic shows, like the films' Bovrn Town, for example, it can't hope to attract 100 percent of the potential audience."

Many Glamor Stars

The noted film photographer says that television already has a substantial list of lovely and glamorous performers. Without attempting to list all, he rattled off the names of Lucille Ball, Maria Riva, Merle Oberon, Dinah Shore, Eve Arden and Ann Sothern as among those in the glamor ranks.

He also included Bess Myerson, Marguerite Piazza, Dale Evans, Gale Storm, Barbara Britton, Judy Johnson, Harriet Nelson, Coleen Gray and Corinne Calvet among TV's attractive women.

Graybill emphasized that television's approach to glamor would involve much more than its feminine stars.

"The other essential ingredients," he said, "include stories with glamorous settings, mood lighting, lavish wardrobes, the right hair-dos, painstaking makeup, and, perhaps above all else, a director with the ability to blend all these together into an enchanting result."

"Television doesn't have all the top craftsmen and won't be able to lure them from motion pictures for another year or two, until contracts expire," Graybill says. "TV will have to come to Hollywood, because here are the indispensable veterans in glamor, both talent and craftsmen, who aren't available elsewhere."

Barbara Britton whose beauty makes popularity of Mr. and Mrs. North no puzzle.

What is glamor, exactly?

"Well, glamor is the physical and mental attraction an artist transmits to an audience. It is what the viewer sees and feels. It is a projection of what the audience desires."

How can you tell it?

"When you see a picture on a screen or magazine cover that stops you short and you exclaim: That's a wonderful doll — where does she come from?"
that’s glamor! Everyone recognizes it.” How do you develop it?
“Glamor is an inborn quality that needs only to be discovered in some. If you pile all the lighting, wardrobe, makeup, hairdo and direction on someone without it, there’s still no glamor. It stands out like a Tiffany diamond, when real.”

How important are revealing gowns to glamor?
“Not nearly as much as most people think. The physical attraction may be an eye-stopper but the manner of walking and talking and mental poise are qualities which sustain glamor beyond the first impression.

“That’s another reason for the absence of glamor on TV now, simply because there isn’t time or money to develop it fully. For example, a movie director would probably be two weeks behind schedule in filming the typical television film made in two or three days on a low budget.”

Freshness Essential
As a photographer whose work has been published in virtually all the leading publications of this country and abroad, Graybill seeks certain characteristics in faces that represent glamor. They are primarily facial freshness and cleanliness, reflecting “zip and zoom,” along with nice hair—appearance. Together, he says, they should be just a bit “provocative.”

His tips to girls for taking flattering portrait pictures, the way he poses stars, are far more complex. Use a street make-up, he advises, light and not caked, to achieve that desirable clean and fresh look. Apply only a little lip-rouge, and nothing else. Don't get a “flossy hair—dress.” Merely have all the hair in place, adjusted to whether the face is thin or heavy. As for men, cleanliness is the sole requisite.

For best results, thoroughly—at-ease postures and attitudes are essential. The still camera is “the most penetrating critic,” Graybill notes, recommending projection of “nice” thoughts from within to register convincing happiness. That’s why men are better subjects, since they attempt no disguises whereas women may. Minimum facial strain is accomplished by sitting or lying while picture is being composed.
POSTPONEMENT of the Marciano-Walcott championship fight till May 15 only went to prove one thing: athletes are a lot less predictable than printing presses. News of the rescheduling of the long-awaited heavyweight brawl came as the first few pages of TV Guide's current issue were to press. Red Smith's interesting article on page 8 (which we felt was of general interest to all television viewers despite the Chicago blackout) still holds true for the May 15 match.

"Ethel & Albert," the comedy segment about life in the suburbs, is taking over the Saturday night 6:30-7:00 period on NBC beginning April 25. . . . Eve Arden, TV's "Our Miss Brooks," has accepted an invitation to be maid of honor at the June wedding of a Chicago schoolmarm. The hitch is, Eve has never met the bride to be. . . . "Biff Baker, USA" is giving it another try. The show will be seen as a half-hour substitute this summer for one of Lucky Strike's shows. The ciggie sponsor owns the filmed series which did a flopoo last time around.

Probably the most interesting comment on educational TV comes from Gilbert Seldes, writing in the Saturday Review. Seldes says in effect—Bring college supervised programs to one TV channel and all the networks will consider themselves free of the responsibility of educating the public. Then what have you got? The viewers who don't need the education will be the only ones watching the "channel for learnin'" while the custard pie routines will attract all the viewers who need it most. Result: less education on TV than ever before.

The renewal of NBC's costly "Comedy Hour" is still in doubt. The problem centers around landing a solid-enough lineup. Bob Hope looks like he's out as participator on the show no matter what happens. . . . Tom Ewell, an actor with a rare sense of the comic, has been signed to a long-term contract by NBC. Tom is the star of Broadway's current comedy smash, "Seven Year Itch."

The lure of the islands adds glamor to this "Aloha" suit, a favorite of the budget-minded buyer. Muted tones of fuchsia and orange blend with brown to provide a splashy print in elasticized cotton. Price: $10.95.

For long-stemmed bathing beauties, this "Embrodered Magic" suit is the answer. Especially suited for the tall girl, this magic length design adjusts to a six-inch additional length. Toni models it in brown elasticized bengaline with white embroidery at the bustline for high fashion. $17.95.

SUMMER PREVIEW

Toni Gilman Models 1953 Beach Togs

For the glamor-conscious girl: "Curtain Call," a black nylon-lauon taffeta suit with long slim torso, draped hipline and nylon net ruffling studded with rhinestones. Add a swishy black skirt and you're set for "moonlight and roses." $29.95.
CHICAGO's TV weathermen, glowing with optimism, are predicting that summer heat waves will blow into the Windy City ere long. There's yet another sign of approaching summer—the blissful sighs of window-shopping women when they first glimpse the 1953 bathing suit displays.

TV's Toni Gilman, animated "Down You Go" panelist, peeked at these new styles created by swimsuit designer Rose Marie Reid and promptly decided they were all worth a try. She's pictured here in a variety of Miss Reid's 1953 seashore fashions, all of which stress a combination of glamour and utility. These suits are available in most department and specialty stores.

The Edwardian period of history inspired this "Princess Honeybee" silhouette. In tapestry brocade, enhanced by a honeybee pattern, this swimsuit molds the figure into hourglass proportions. Featuring long slim bodice and draped blamers, this style is available in variations of blue, green, yellow and pink. Price: $25.
From Greenbacks To Green Thumb

A BANKER with a green thumb obviously can't be happy confined to his vaults. The only green he sees there are greenbacks whose artificial coloring would leave any nature-lover shuddering. Much better to throw it all up and spend his time cultivating Nature's chlorophyll green.

John Ott is a former Chicago banker (20 years) who parlayed a green thumb into a profitable business, even taking it into TV. Each week Ott conducts gardening clinics via the visual medium on his show, "How Does Your Garden Grow?"

But Ott is best known for his time lapse studies which combine another of his hobbies—photography—with flower growing. Behind this unique experiment lie 26 years of labor, constant study and a laboratory developed over the years until it is now a horticulturist's paradise.

It took 19 years for Ott's hobby to reach its present stage. After mastering the technicalities of box and movie cameras, he began tinkering with time-lapse photography (recording on film of movements, growth or change over a long period so that the action unfolds on the screen in a matter of minutes.) This process makes it possible to view such phenomena as shoots pushing through the earth, buds bursting into bloom and development of leaves.

Since his early experiments, Ott has perfected his hobby by adding numerous gadgets (some are his own inventions) like automatic exposure timers, light and camera controls and watering systems.

When his hobby developed into a full-time occupation, John began showing motion pictures and lecturing and has organized a firm that now produces and distributes time-lapse films. More recently he has worked with Hollywood's Walt Disney in creating several nature films including the highly-regarded "Nature's Half-Acre." John also produced "Our Changing World," a movie that recorded growth and development of the earth from time's beginning. With his special cameras, he photographed the development of a cavity in a human tooth for a dental health film.

The lanky (6 ft. 4 in.) gardener spends most of his time away from TV in a maze of microscopes, cameras and plants in his basement studio. All processes are automatically controlled so that Ott needn't be there continually. But like a fond parent, John is in the studio at least once a night playing nursemaid to his mechanisms.

A native Winnetka son, he now has a spacious white home there which he shares with his wife, daughter Anne, 15, and son Henry, 5. And he's realized another ambition—his own movie studio to show his films.

John has a sense of humor, too. A quarter of a century ago, he devised a mechanism for his laboratory out of a kitchen clock. Today that clock, which does everything but keep the right time, is still part of his equipment. "When I'm finished with it," he drawls thoughtfully, "guess I'd better return it to the kitchen."

"How Does Your Garden Grow?" is seen at 1 p.m. Sundays on WNBQ.
Is There an Inventor in the House?

A right nifty item, especially for travelers, is the All Cushion Inflatable Hanger invented by Mr. Adolph Reiter of Manhattan. You can hang your coat on it, use it as a pillow, or let your tot play with it to keep him quiet. All you have to do is blow it up. Deflated, it folds and fits in your pocket.

This patently desirable adjunct to civilization will soon be for sale in stores. Theoretically, though, it might have taken years to get where you could buy it if it weren’t for a TV show called The Big Idea.

Each Monday from 8 to 8:30 p.m. over channel 9, The Big Idea provides inventors with a showcase in which to demonstrate their marketable inventions. After three months of existence, it has this record:

Out of 48 inventions shown, 22 have either been bought or are in final stages of negotiations. One Philadelphia inventor worked 10 years to perfect a fine new kind of cap for the collapsible tubes that toothpaste and shaving cream and so forth come in. You put this cap on the tube and then never have to remove it until the tube is all used up. The cap is self-sealing but opens up when you squeeze the tube.

After being shown on The Big Idea, the cap was quickly sold to the nation’s biggest tube-cap maker. The inventor’s royalties will be about $10,000 in 1953, perhaps millions later.

Another idea that paid off because of this program came from a Salem, N. J., man. This is a chemically-treated Christmas-tree ornament that acts as an extinguisher if the tree catches fire. The Salemite will make an estimated $18,000 this year from it.

If you have an unmarketed invention you’d like to demonstrate on the air, host Don Bennett invites you to write to The Big Idea, G.P.O. Box 1492, New York 1, N. Y. It may be your chance for wealth & fame.

Bennett himself is working on two big ideas. “But I can’t find time,” he complains, “to finish my own inventions.”

"Censorship Is Not The Way To Better Programs"

AFTER A SIEGE of sponsoritis, likeable Ted Mack is finally returning to begin another series of his "Original Amateur Hour." Ted probably has more right to claim a "mandate from the people" than any newly-elected U.S. president ever has. The letters demanding his return have been coming in steadily since his most recent sponsor dropped the show.... Crooner Eddie Fisher, fresh out of the army, launches his own TV vehicle April 29. It'll be a twice-a-weeker. Don Ameche will serve as host.

The windup of the Palm Beach Golf Tournament will be telecast over the DuMont net on May 17. Already invited to appear are such aces as Sam Snead, Byron Nelson, Julius Boros and Lloyd Mangrum.... The soaring, melodic Richard Strauss opera "Der Rosenkavalier" will be presented in two parts (April 25 & May 2) on the NBC Television Opera Theater.

This Week's Highlights: Arthur Godfrey and all his famous little ones will make the plunge this Wednesday night. Arthur's swimming extravaganza (an off-shoot of his ice shows) will be telecast direct from the pool of Miami Beach's Kenilworth Hotel.... Baseball, of course, returns to TV with the telecasting of the Chicago city series over the weekend.... Always delighted Jimmy Durante again features Wagnerian soprano Helen Traubel as his guest on "All Star Revue." Miss Traubel and the Schozz will "render" "Our Voices Were Meant For Each Other".... Leopold ("Hands") Stokowski will direct Haydn's whimsically amusing "Toy Symphony" on "Omnibus."

CAN YOU FIND YOUR TV TROUBLE AMONG THESE SAMPLE "TROUBLE-FINDER" TEST PATTERNS?

Ghosts  Snow  Diagonal lines  Rolling picture

TV OWNER'S REPAIR BOOK'S Unique New "PICTURE-COMPARISON METHOD" ENABLES YOU TO IDENTIFY TV TROUBLE SYMPTOMS QUICKLY and then TELLS YOU EXACTLY HOW TO MAKE THE NECESSARY ADJUSTMENTS or REPAIRS

At last a book has been written which makes it easy as pie for the average TV Set owner himself to make his adjustments and repairs when his set develops trouble. This new, unique PICTURE-COMPARISON METHOD enables you to quickly spot your TV set trouble symptoms—and the causes—and the cure!

It has been impossible, of course, to list in an ad all the possible troubles of a TV set. THE BOOK HAS THEM ALL—simple for you to spot and with instructions making it just as simple for you to fix.

Takes The Mystery Out Of TV Repairs
Now if your picture flickers or jumps, or becomes distorted or dissolves into lines or sags, or is murky or dim—a flick of the finger to the right page shows you exactly what constant knob to turn to correct THE TROUBLE IN LESS THAN ONE MINUTE! From now on, every time you’re annoyed by "ghosts", "snow" or weak channel reception—the TV OWNERS BOOK shows you how to effect a quick 15 minute repair job that eliminates the fault and restores the set to perfect, movie-clear performance and same with almost every other fault or defect. You will be able to correct it fast and good.

It has been estimated that 3 out of every 3 TV faults is caused by something the owner can correct fully 33-1/3% of the troubles that may develop in a set. The TV OWNERS BOOK shows you how to safely locate and change the bad tube in less than 5 minutes.

You Can Save $5 to $100 on Repairs By Doing Them Yourself—Never Before Such A Complete Authoritative Book For So Little Money!

It has a special section of TUBE LAYOUT DIAGRAMS—for all popular sets. If it’s a tube at fault, you find the diagram for your set, find the location of the tube and replace easily and quickly. Even contains a listing of fair retail prices for tubes (also for picture tubes) which you can figure in for the price of the bad tube to $6.00 for a C6DiG tube.

There is a chapter devoted just to elimination of interference. Tells you what "interference" is, describes and illustrates the interference, and gives you six easy ways for elimination.

SEND NO MONEY unless you wish
KEN'T BOOK COMPANY, Dept.TM41, 80 East 11th Street, N. Y. 3, N. Y.

Please send me the TV OWNER'S SELF-REPAIR BOOK immediately. I agree to pay postman on arrival $1.00 plus C.O.D. postage. If the book does not help me get a clearer, sharper, better defined picture than I am now getting—if the book doesn’t make it possible for me to fix or repair my own set, if I am not 100% satisfied, I may return book for my full money back.

LAST month, when WBKB carried the Illinois state high school basketball championship, the event was covered by one of the hottest sportscasters around. His name was Jack Drees and his play-calling on the speed-burning high school games was practically impeccable. He communicated all the excitement of the event, yet didn’t burst into hysteria. And there was no question—he knew his sports.

As Sports Director at WBKB, Drees has taken over all the special sports broadcasts on the station, has a sports-news show of his own, and covers “Boxing from Rainbo” every Monday night.

Calling the fights from Rainbo, Jack has shown a remarkable ability to let the fights tell their own story. He’s quick on the trigger and by inserting commentary only where it’s needed has heightened the fight action.

Apparently some people besides Chicagoans have been watching. From Pabst Blue Ribbon comes word that starting on April 15, Jack Drees will be the regular announcer on the Wednesday night fights over the entire CBS network. He will continue on the job throughout the summer until September when Russ Hodges returns. This is the same job that Steve Ellis handled last year and could be the spur that pushes Jack up among the select company of the nation’s top sportscasters.

It comes as no surprise that Jack knows what he’s talking about when he’s talking about sports. If you can remember back to 1934, you’ll probably recall a flashy center on the Austin High School basketball team whose expert play won him all city honors and a “ride” to the U. of Iowa.

At Iowa, Jack was first string center for three years, at a time when it was almost a tradition that only seniors could be first stringers. While at school, he also broadcast over the University station WSUI. After graduation he joined WJJD in Chicago where he handled baseball, football, basketball and horse racing.

Jack’s budding career was temporarily nipped when he went into the Navy in 1943 as a gunnery officer in the armed guard. He was in for 33 months, 30 of them overseas. While on sea duty, he once did a broadcast of boxing matches on his ship with the gun crews on duty listening to him over their battle phones.

After the war, Jack’s big break was a network horse racing show from Arlington Park on which he split the announcing chores with a famous “inventor” named Don Ameche. From there he went to WENR-TV (now WBKB), where his distinguished work won him the twin plums of the High School tournament and the Daily News Relays.

Jack lives in Edgebrook, just northwest of Chicago with his wife and their two sons who, according to Jack, are both already authorities on sports. It all stems from his theory that television is improving the caliber of sports competition. “The youngsters pick up every movement of the professionals. They’re watching the experts, and are learning much faster by imitating them.” Judging from the sudden rise of Jack Drees, television is improving the caliber of its sportscasters too.

Jack Drees can be heard on Boxing from Rainbo, Mon. at 9 p.m. on channel 7 (WBKB) and on various other channel 7 sport shows.
After many tentative starts, "The Life of Riley" has finally converted to TV from radio. A few years back Jackie Gleason played the part briefly on TV, but the role really was written for William Bendix, seen here with Marjorie Reynolds, Eugene Sanders and Wesley Morgan.
BRASS, BARNES
& TEN ACRES

By WM. A. QUE

RATHER UNUSUAL, but practical is Paul Lavalle's contribution to the good neighbor policy. Paul, who conducts the Cities Service Band of America Mondays at 8:30 P.M., has a barn set in the middle of ten acres of ground. Here he does all his practicing and composing.

Dark-haired, dynamic Lavalle has become an idol to millions of Americans who play in the 75,000 bands across the country and to untold millions more who are stimulated by the tingling rhythm of woodwinds, percussion and brass.

And if you live next door to an aspiring musician, let's hope he takes a tip from Lavalle and rents a barn in the middle of ten acres!

Recently, Paul aired his 1,350th program, which also marked the 26th anniversary of the sponsor—Cities Service—the oldest, continuously sponsored network program on the radio.

ANOTHER FELLOW who's doing some work in the middle of ten acres or so, is that lovable guy, Everett Mitchell, farm commentator of the National Farm & Home Hour (WMAQ, Saturdays, 12:00 Noon).

Temporarily Everett has abandoned the barns and farms of the U.S.A. for a globe-circling trip to study foreign agriculture. About now, Mitch is good neighboring in Pakistan. "It's a small world," says Ev.

Mastersone, Reddy & Nelson

The Fable of
The Three Johns

Once upon a time, as all good fables start, there were three men named John.

About six years ago the trio converged in Hollywood and planted an idea which has since skyrocketed its originators into the big money class. It all revolves around audience-participation shows and concerns giving things away. The Three Johns (Masterson, Reddy & Nelson), although still young, are the grandpappies of the old giveaway gimmick.

They launched their Santa Claus tradition on Tom Breneman’s radio breakfast show, giving orchids to the oldest lady in each day’s audience. Since then, they’ve graduated to bigger and better gifts—like deep freezers, refrigerators, washing machines, offered today on such programs as “Bride And Groom” where they provide comfortable dowries for newlyweds.

Today, the Masterson, Reddy & Nelson firm is a leader in the radio-TV producing and packaging industry and the founders are widely-acclaimed in the industry as the Three Johns, success unlimited.

MR&N have always been closely associated. Even as sophomores at Gonzaga University in Spokane, Wash. back in 1932, they worked as a team. Reddy was promotion and publicity man for the school’s annual play, Nelson plucked a fat acting part in the show, and Masterson drew the producer’s assignment. Before they left Gonzaga, Masterson was president of the student organization; Reddy, editor of the school paper, and Nelson headed student dramatics.

When they graduated in 1936, the three settled in San Francisco. Again they were inseparable. Nelson worked as radio announcer while Reddy wrote and Masterson polished the ideas. These ideas ran the gamut from a device to pipe news programs into cocktail bars to promotion of the Shrine East-West football game.

When the gimmick and giveaway era hit radio, John, John & John were on the spot with the jackpots. They managed to wangle almost $2,500,000 worth of prizes for “Bride & Groom,” one of their original inspirations.

The teamplay of the Three Johns became habit-forming, even lapping over into their personal lives. All three married in 1943. Within one month in 1946, they had four boys (Nelson became father of twins). And Mastersone & Reddy live within a block of each other in New York City. And most surprising of all, the three Johns are all still good friends.

7 WHAT'S NEW—Commentary

1:25 4 LATE WORLD NEWS
(Stations reserve the right to change above listings without notice)
WITH THE ADDITION of the Bob & Kay show to the ranks of WNBQ's already-powerful local line-up, the Chicago NBC outlet can boast of perhaps the strongest programming schedule of any station in the country—second to none. . . . Cheers for two of our favorite people about town who don’t always get their share of the publicity swag thrown around: To Jack Angell who came up with the film scoop of the year—an exclusive interview with the young marine killer who went berserk recently, murdering three people. The frankness and skill of Angell's questioning made it downright touching, as well as a little frightening.

And to Barbara Moro, the former channel 7 star, who gave the best performance to date on WNBQ's spotty "Curtain Time." Babs, fresh from stealing the show in Showcase Theater's recent production of "The Women," is proving herself one of Our Town's top actresses.

Jim Moran's "Courtesy Hour" is leading the way in acquainting high school students with the behind-the-scenes workings of a television program. It's all a part of the National Television Review Board's plan to educate the kids with a first hand knowledge of TV. . . . Special memo to the local gossip columnist who "fired" Jack Mabley from these pages: You can read Jack's controversial column every week in TV Guide, on sale every Wednesday at your local newsstands.

ONE of the great fallacies among TV set owners is the notion that there is money to be saved by installing your TV antenna yourself. This notion can be downright dangerous.

When a rookie tries to put an antenna up, the results can be catastrophic. Your set can be wrecked, you and members of your family can receive painful shocks and burns, your house can be set on fire—all because of a lack of know-how.

The main danger usually arises from a nearness to electric power lines. For if your antenna should fall against a live power wire the stray current would be conducted through the building (plumbing or heating pipes) that could electrocute or severely burn a person.

What is a dangerous installation? No matter how securely attached to a firm base your antenna may seem, it is a peril if it is put up within a few feet of a power line—or by means of supporting guy lines that cross a power line—or on a pole that could fall across a power line.

And when an antenna near power lines is fixed to a loose or crumbling chimney, or with bolts whose threads have been stripped by over-tightening, or with insecure guy lines—then, obviously, the danger is great.

It is these little things, generally overlooked, that make for danger. And they are the things that an inexperienced person knows nothing about. Only when you have a certified TV repairman install your antenna can you be sure that the job will be done properly.

THE Monday night Rainbo Boxing show over Channel 7 will not be axed soon as rumored in sports circles. In fact, producer Jack Page says WBKB brass is studying network possibilities. The International Boxing Guild, on the other hand, is asking less television and more money for its fighters.

The Guild will demand that all network main event boxers receive a minimum of $5,000 after June 15. They also decided to limit network-TV fights to four nights a week instead of the current six. The Guild, which boasts a membership of most of the nation's top managers and trainers, will also insist all contracts between fighters and promoters for TV bouts be approved by their board of directors.

Present minimums are: For Monday nights, $1,500; Tuesday, $1,500; Wednesday, $2,000; Thursday, $1,000; Friday, $3,600 and Saturday, $1,500. There is, of course, no maximum figure. Irv Schoenwald, Chicago promoter, will be relieved to know these figures apply to network telecasts only.

With Jack Brickhouse back behind the WGN-TV mike to bring us all the White Sox and Cub home day games, we're in a prognosticating mood; Here's how finish of the American and National League pennant chase looks to us;

Mailbag: "Please be advised soccer is not being dropped from TV because of a lack of fan interest. It broke all attendance records this year."—Frank Kracher, Chicago, Ill.

"Our contract (soccer) expired with Mages Sports Stores and WGN-TV on the last Sunday of March...To say we are being dropped is misleading...this has been our best season since 1950..."—George Fishwick, Chicago, Ill.

Note: When we announced that soccer was being dropped by Mages and WGN-TV due to a lack of fan interest—we meant TV fans, not cash customers. Our comment can be disproved if WGN-TV resumes soccer telecasts this summer during the outdoor season.

This time you be the judge! Keep score with Jack Drees and Ed Pazdur every Monday night over WBKB, 8:30 p.m., on Pantiac's Boxing From Rainbo show.

Boys and girls, are you wondering why Gabby Hayes is wrinkling up his nose? Well, here’s the answer: that’s his way of smiling. If you watch his show (4:15 p.m. Mon. through Fri., WNBQ), you know that Gabby can tell some of the tallest tales with that crinkly grin. By the way, those whiskers are the real McCoy. Someone tried pulling them once and Gabby was plenty sore!

THIS WEEK’S CONTEST: How many words can you make out of “Gabby Hayes Show”? Send your lists to Uncle Herbie, % TV Guide, 185 N. Wabash Ave., Chicago 1, Ill., before Sunday, April 19. For the longest list, I’ll award $1; second longest, 50 cents, next 15 runners-up, 25 cents each.

Here are my March 7 winners:

MOLLY CUES

Here are some of the unforgettable moments of television in the past year: Ike’s first televised press conference after his return from Paris.

The first Studio One production last winter under new producer Fletcher Markle.

Kukla, Fran and Ollie’s personal Academy Awards.

Bea Lillie leading the Pittsburgh choral group.

Stevenson’s speech of acceptance at 2 in the morning.

Bob Hope’s emceeing at the Academy Award ceremony.

Lucille Ball’s tramp vaudeville bit.

The debut of Win Stracke’s Animal Fun.

Lillian Gish’s performance on Television Playhouse—so good that it will be repeated next fall.

David Burns’ comedy bits on the Ed Sullivan show in March—and Lilli Palmer’s superb comedy routine with him.

Helen Hayes’ acting in “The Twelve Pound Look” on Omnibus.

Bishop Sheen—any Tuesday.

The Pinkneyville youngster tossing a basketball nearly the length of the floor at Champaign, and the camera following the ball perfectly as it swished through the hoop.

Sen. Nixon’s showmanship as he told the nation about his personal finances.

The last Yankee-Dodgers game.

Mister Peepers’ locker.

The Inaugural Parade, and particularly the NBC coverage during the half-hour before the other networks came on the air.

The first televised atomic explosion. It didn’t have a tenth of the pictorial quality of the second telecast, but it had ten times the suspense.

The Davey-Graziano fight.

Charles Laughton reading deMau-passant’s “Moonlight.”

Cliff Arquette’s wonderful comedy on the Dennis Day show.

The thoughtful face of J. Fred Muggs on Today.

Ernie Kovacs’ spoofing of What’s My Line. (I saw this in a saloon, and conditions weren’t ideal for viewing, but it looked terrific through the smoke).

The Nov. 4 election night coverage.

Kraft Theater’s production of “She Stoops to Conquer.”

The Hit Parade’s final spring show last year from the new ocean liner, United States.

The telecast of an operation from the American Medical Association convention in Chicago.

The Christmas show from Dinah Shore’s home.

Studs’ Place.

Steve Ellis’ announcing as he watched and described the pasting his boy Chico Vejar was taking from Chuck Davey.

The horse which behaved like a horse in the middle of the stage on the Sullivan show.

This Is Your Life’s life of Lillian Roth.

The story of submarine warfare on Victory at Sea.

"It’s the latest thing, madam, you can draw the drapes on the commercials."
DEAR BOSS:

There must be lots of sympathetic tears shed in living rooms all over America each Wednesday night when Ralph Edwards presents his This Is Your Life. And no wonder. This show focuses the camera on more moments of genuine human emotion than any other program I know of.

But I force back the tears—I need them. I have to shed mine for Ralph Edwards himself. His is the pitiful case. Here's what I mean. The other night he was doing the life of Fifi D'Orsay. They had just finished the big scene . . . a reunion of Fifi and her brother's widow and daughter. The vivacious French movie star had supported them for eleven years . . . ever since her brother had been crippled by arthritis. Much of this period was during the time Fifi's own career was in eclipse and her contributions to the little family up in Montreal must have called for genuine sacrifice.

As the mother and daughter rushed into Fifi's arms, sobbing their gratitude in broken English, it was a touching, beautiful scene. My wife and mother watched with glistening eyes. But I fought back my tears—I had a hunch I'd need them.

And I was right. Right smack after Fifi and her niece were embracing, I began weeping for Ralph. He had to turn straight into the camera, smile bravely and announce that Hazel Bishop was capable of many kind things but at this moment they were going to outdo themselves. They were going to save the women of America $2,000,000.

That's right. Ralph said that the $2.25 regular-size ensemble of Hazel's lipstick would now be sold for $1.25. Two million lucky women could save two million bucks—but by that time I'm crying so hard for poor Ralph's dilemma that I can't see the screen anymore. Sorry. CHUB

Why do they have Janette Davis stand up and tell all her measurements to Arthur Godfrey and all the little Godfreys? He must know them as he bought her a blouse.

Chicago, Ill. MISS V. DAVIES

In a recent magazine issue one person wrote that Julius LaRosa when asked if he was married, said, "No, but I've got Jan." (Janette Davis). He said nothing of the sort. What he did say was, "I'm with Jan." Meaning he was also unmarried. Chicago, Ill. A. FISHER

Jack Mabley. . . . Your article entitled "Strike It Poor" is not only obnoxious but abominable. . . . Furthermore your warped thoughts on this program . . . they don't impress me and your degrading a wonderful program was a complete flop. If you think you can defend yourself . . . feel free.

Waukegan, Ill. MRS. JAMES BOURLAND

You said that Durante has called the president's daughter. But Margaret Truman is not the president's daughter. Truman is now EX-president.

Chicago, Ill. J. WILLIAM GIMBEL III

Ed. Note: A news flash we clean overlooked.

Crown Point, Ind. C. LEIGHTON GROF

Your story "Operation Foxhole" about Wayne Griffin was wonderful. However I question the sincerity of the author. This fellow, the writer, doesn't know that Stout Institute is not located at Menominee, Wisconsin. . . . Wayne should have been given the chance to edit this stuff.

Zion, Ill. HERBERT E. LARSON

Read your story on Wayne Griffin. But the author did not sign his name. We don't blame him for he should go hide under a rock. He seems to think wrestling is a big fake and we'll bet he's never even been to see a real match. You'd better tell the boy to learn the facts before he calls wrestling fake.

St. Joseph, Mich. MRS. A. BRINK

Ed. Note: The author who intimated "fake" in the article has since been banished to New York.

This week a new low was reached in the quantity and quality of oldie movies newly made available for TV showing—stopping those rumors that 3-D movies would stampede distributors into releasing their stockpiled "flattie" movies for televiewing.

Latest ripple on a comparatively smooth TV surface is the Congressional investigation of what's delaying color-TV. Senator Johnson (D-Colo.), backed by Senator Tobey (R-N.H.), started what may develop into a Donnybrook with the accusation that "powerful interests are holding back color-TV until the market is saturated with black-and-white TV sets." First new demonstrations of color-TV, scheduled for March 30 and 31, were postponed until later this month.

On the contract and cancellation front: Edgar Bergen has signed with CBS and you can tell the kids they're due for at least five sessions with Charlie McCarthy and Mortimer Snerd beginning in the fall. No renewal in the offering for Margaret Truman but Fred MacMurray is on the verge of signing for a situation comedy series. Bob and Ray may be scheduled for a regular spot on Kate Smith's show.

In its recently published pamphlet the U.S. Dept. of Commerce reveals that in 38 foreign nations surveyed, 35 have TV stations in operation, under construction or in the experimental stage.

A six-foot color-TV projection unit will be demonstrated this year at the American Medical Association convention in New York.

"Three-D films in television are nothing new," says film and TV star Jack Carson. "Nearly every film made for TV is done in 3-D—three days, that is."

The musical comedy "angel" of yesterday looks lots different today. RCA is backing a new Rodgers and Hammerstein musical comedy, Me and Juliet. Of course, there's more to it than meets the eye. Part of the deal includes exclusive TV rights to NBC and recording rights to RCA.

FINE TUNING

Baseball ready for new season of telecasts. The baseball diamond proves you can be a square, and still popular. TV—that's the magic medium that made honest men out of sports announcers.

After all the anti-crime shows, along comes one that proves it pays to steal. In honor of television, the official ball this year is likely to be Lucille. The batters want the opening game billed as Hit Parade and the pitchers are holding out for the title Strike It Rich.

They even want a special show for the umpires called Break the Back.

One television fan is so mixed up he can't decide whether the best double-play combination is Kukla, Fran and Ollie or John, Cameron and Swayze. He thinks the best catcher is Jack Webb. His idea of a two-bagger is Arthur Godfrey making a strong cup of tea.

Television is affecting baseball. One team trained this year just by running around Kate Smith.
Art Baker Delivers When YOU ask for it

If you want to see a bull in a china closet, a barrel of monkeys, the world's fattest cowboy (all 342 pounds of him), a girl who likes to be frozen in ice, or any other animal, vegetable or mineral, the place to look is Art Baker's You Asked For It (ABC).

The show breaks down into five major categories: mind over matter (the swivel neck performer who turned his head 180 degrees); man versus elements (the fire eater); nostalgia (El Brendel, Ruby Keeler were brought back); animals (the ping-pong playing cat); and human interest (the one-armed and one-legged dancer).

The show was conceived by Maury Cohen, Cran Chamberlin, Wayne Steffner and Frank Oxarat, men in their 30's who were promising advertising and network executives before embarking on program. They chose Baker, whose career includes radio, film stunts and a session as a lecturer on guided cemetery tours, for master of ceremonies. Chamberlin originated the idea and his wife the catchy title.
THE RESULT—Art Baker posing with six lovely models wearing bathing suits of different eras since the beginning of the century. They appeared on his program in response to the letter written by Mrs. Wilson M. Dye, of Grand Rapids, Mich., one of 3000 letters received by Baker each week.

Baker putting Electra and the robot's dog Sparky through their paces for the thousands who wanted to see the mechanical pair. The show's viewers, in response to the "Wanted" feature, which Baker telecasts, help the show track down elusive features.

The lady and the tiger. While Baker discreetly remains outside the cage, Mabel Stark, famed animal trainer, demonstrates her mastery over a tiger to delight the vast TV audience. The program has brought all sorts of entertainment to Hollywood from paints around the globe, just because some viewer asked for it.
Bennett Cerf, urbane and witty panelist of the CBS show What's My Line?, has compiled another of his wonderful books of jokes and anecdotes. A raconteur par excellence, Cerf has titled the new book, Good For A Laugh. It's published by Hanover House. Excerpts are reprinted with permission.

For television use, where white shirts would cause glare, Paul Hartman ordered two stiff-bosomed evening shirts in blue. The mystified shirtnaker followed instructions—at $25 per instruction.

Hartman used the shirts with conspicuous success, and then consigned them to the laundry. But they didn't come back with either that week's wash or the next. They finally were delivered, accompanied by a note from the unhappy laundryman.

"We scrubbed and scrubbed these shirts," it read, "and finally succeeded in getting most of the blue out of them. If they are not absolutely white, please don't blame us."

Goodman Ace says he's discovered how really to enjoy television. "We do it all with a six-foot screen," he explains gravely, and when his visitor invariably expresses astonishment, he adds: "Yes, it's a Japanese screen, and we place it directly in front of the television set."

After listening to Tallulah Bankhead struggle through a song, Jimmy Durante confided, "I think you ought to have your tonsils out." "I've already had them out," she replied. Durante suggested: "Then put 'em back in."

Herb Shriner, the greatest thing in homespun wits since the days of Will Rogers, spends a good deal of his time discussing the town drunk back in his Indiana hometown. The poor fellow wasn't always that way, he simply took a nip now and then to "quiet his nerves." He finally quieted them so completely he couldn't move at all.

Myron Cohen tells about the Brooklyn kid who watched six Wild West programs on TV every day. His mother sought one evening to lure him away from the machine and in to dinner, but the kid shot his pistol into the air and said: "Thanks, pard, but I reckon I ain't got any hankerin' tonight for matzoth balls."

Fulton J. Sheen relates that shortly after his elevation to the rank of Bishop he made the first of his many appearances on television, and stopped for a cup of coffee at the drugstore in the building where the studio was located, with his red cape already in place. The girl at the counter, obviously used to serving actors in every kind of costume, took the red cape very much in stride and asked blithely: "What's yours, Cock Robin?"
MARGUERITE Piazza, lovely soprano star of NBC's Show of Shows, has the benefit of her own select circle of critics—the cab drivers of New York City.

It's a group that most opera stars never reach. But Marguerite does through the magic medium of television. And her taxi-driving friends never hesitate to tell her what they like and what they don’t like.

"I feel that most of them know me," Miss Piazza explains. "When I get into their cabs, they start talking about the show. And it seems to me they always say: 'Lay off that popular stuff, kid, and do more of the good music.'"

Her Best Audience

For Marguerite, this is more fun and a better guide than singing at the Metropolitan and reading the reviews of the music critics. She thinks it's a measure of how serious music is growing in popularity in the United States, thanks to television.

"We didn't expect it when we started," Miss Piazza says, "but we've found that the more serious the music and the more artistic the performance, the greater the public response."

If it's true, Marguerite can take a lot of the credit for knocking out some of the preconceived notions about opera singers. She's one of the real beauties of the entertainment world—creamy skin, the figure of a bathing beauty, a dazzling wardrobe, flowing black hair and large and lustrous black eyes.

She's Whistle-Bait

She's about as far from the caricature of an over-stuffed soprano as the law allows. She's one of the first stars of operatic caliber who can be whistled at, as well as applauded. The result is that she already has sung to more people than any other classical singer in the history of the world.

In her smart duplex apartment in the Sutton Place section of New York, Miss Piazza is now reaping some of the rewards of her success. The gray walls, above the yellow carpeting, are lined with her collection of fine paintings. Sideboards hold exquisite glassware, some of it from the Emperor Maximilian's palace in Mexico.

Terraces, which Miss Piazza keeps lined with growing plants during the summer months, open on the motley view of New York's East Side.

The main room is just made for entertaining, but Marguerite's principal interests are elsewhere—in the large nursery shared by her two sons, Gregory, 6, and Graves, 1½, and in the tiny studio upstairs which holds her piano and desk.

Born in New Orleans

Marguerite—born Marguerite Claire Lucille Piazza in New Orleans—hasn't let success go to her head. She works harder now than she did on the climb to the top.

"I guess I was a lazy little girl," she recalls. "I was 9 when my mother first Marguerite in one of her favorite roles on the Show of Shows. She learns 25 arias a season.

It wasn't easy. Marguerite's father, an Alsatian of French and German descent, was killed in an automobile accident when she was 3. She was brought up in the home of her mother's parents, who are of Italian lineage.

Marguerite really began her serious study of voice at 15. After that, there was no stopping her. She paid for most of her education at Loyola University in New Orleans by singing in various churches and conducting her own sponsored radio program over a New Orleans station. A scholarship gave her one year in Louisiana State's opera department. She already was pretty enough to be picked as queen of New Orleans' Mardi Gras. So she tackled New York.

"I had a letter from one of the priests at Loyola to Eddie Dowling," she recalls, "but I was too shy to present it. I sat around New York for several days, trying to get up my courage. Then mother came up, took the letter to Dowling and got me an audition."

One Was Enough

One audition was enough. It isn't the usual story, but Marguerite landed a lead role on her first try. She's been maintaining that pace ever since. Her chance at television, which skyrocketed her to fame, came just as suddenly.

Marguerite had a singing role in the Burgess Meredith production of Happy Is Larry. The show opened and closed in three days. But in those three days, Max Liebman, who was then preparing to launch Show of Shows had a chance to see and hear Marguerite. He signed her on the day the show closed and added another to his long list of star discoveries.

Television meant a busy new life for Piazza. She has to learn an average of 25 new arias for each season, including not only the music, but the intricate steps of television staging.

It isn't like opera. Marguerite steps through a doorway, singing. As soon as it's out of camera range, stagehands carry it off. In the middle of her dramatic aria, Sid Caesar and Imogene Coca are taking their places for a comedy sequence a few feet away.

"I shut all this out," Miss Piazza says, pressing her hands to her temples. "I think only of the music. I hear nothing. I see nothing, not even the cameras. This way it comes out right."

Changes On Stage

Once, she even had an on-stage costume change, in full view of the studio audience. It was from a business suit to an evening dress. Marguerite did it by wearing the evening blouse under the suit coat and draping an evening skirt over the business skirt.

"I had only a few seconds, but I made it," she recalls. "Then the audience almost spoiled it by cheering."

She has a few unrealized ambitions, not including the Metropolitan, for which she sang Rosalinda in Die Fledermaus a few seasons ago. Without giving... up television, she just hasn't time for the rigid Metropolitan rehearsal schedule.

But she would like to make one good movie. "I've had offers, but I wouldn't want to pick the wrong one." She'd like to make a TV film series of some of her arias. And she'd like a dramatic role with some singing in a Broadway production.

Her life has been shadowed by the death of her husband, J. Graves McDonald, Memphis industrialist, but Miss Piazz, like most true artists, has been able to find escape in her singing.

She lives a full and busy life, with personal appearances and summer concerts filling in the hours away from Show of Shows. Last Summer, she sang for the Memphis Light Opera Association, and received an expensive compliment.

A thief broke into her dressing room. When Miss Piazz returned to the room and opened her jewel case, she found this note:

"With your voice and your looks, you don't need these as badly as I do."

She Loves To Travel

Despite this, Marguerite would not miss the experience of touring the country. It gives her a chance to really meet the people for whom she has been singing on the television show.

"When I was in Atlanta," she recalls, "an elderly farmer and his wife came to see me at the hotel. They had driven nearly 100 miles from a little farm town, just to see me. They said they felt they knew me because of the television show.

"It makes you feel humble just to know how many people you reach in how many places."

The same feeling is inspired by letters from mothers around the country who say they hope their daughters "will grow up just like you."

Despite her success, Marguerite has made new friends on each of her tours. People who meet her backstage and other performers are most impressed by her naturalness. She stages no tantrums, has no attacks of temperament.

For her, singing is her greatest joy and she feels just "lucky all over" to be able to do it.

Ready to Give Up

Yet there were times when she was ready to abandon her singing career. She entered it first to please her mother, continued it to please her vocal teacher, then took her opportunities as they came along.

When she met disappointments, she wasn't crushed. She was just ready to try something else.

"But each time," she explains, "something came along that gave me an opportunity to continue singing. That's why I'm here."

She's the queen of her own art, but she admires and respects the comedy art of Caesar and Coca.

"You know sometimes they let me play in the slapstick scenes," Marguerite Piazz, says. "I love it."

FREEDOM RINGS, one of the more recent additions to CBS-TV's afternoon program lineup, offers no sensation ally new ideas to revolutionize the industry. As a successful mixture of Stop the Music, Beat the Clock and other audience participation shows, it will probably glue housewives to their sets and that is its primary motive. (CBS, Tues. and Thurs.)

The title is a prize misnomer, in that the program has no patriotic motif. Instead, the "freedom" refers to the "freedom from drudgery" which the sponsor's home appliance products provide the housewife, while the "rings" refers to telephone calls placed to home viewers to give them a crack at winning some of the prize loot. Hence the Stop the Music similarity.

Beal on Strange Path

John Beal, versatile actor familiar to viewers via his many roles in TV dramatic programs, strikes off on a strange, new path as emcee of this show. His overdone enthusiasm too often becomes boisterously disconcerting and his perpetual smile begins to grate after a while. Beal attempts to inject comedy into the program, but the fun derives more from the unwitting antics of the studio participants.

On the program, women members of the studio audience try to solve make-believe problems in the home, which are enacted by a talented group of actors. Thus, one woman may be asked to change the bedclothes for a sick child without moving the child. Another may be asked to point out mistakes in a pantomime pageant.

Free Talent Best

Thus, as is usually the case in giveaway shows, the entertainment is provided not by the hired hands, but by the free talent in the studio audience. And whether it's actually talent, or the ladies are just flustered enough to be amusing when they're on camera, is a moot question.

Since women are apparently good entertainment all by themselves, the day may come when these programs can dispense entirely with a paid master of ceremonies. The sponsor will merely ship a carload or two of his products to a studio, turn the cameras on, and let the ladies scramble for the prizes. There might be some coiffures spoiled and some ribs cracked, but golly, what fun!

As it is now, Freedom Rings provides little of interest to the man in the family. The show is obviously designed, however, to lure the housewives to the TV receiver, and it should encounter little difficulty in achieving this goal.
WITH a revised format, and a new group of imaginative writers to aid the cause, Milton Berle's Star Theater has completely recaptured this year the verve and fun displayed when it first took the air more than four years ago. The program is now broadcast only three weeks out of every four (NBC-TV, Tuesday nights) and the week's payoff each month for Uncle Miltie and his cast has undoubtedly helped it thrive.

Berle himself is a new personality this year, much more relaxed and hence much easier to like and enjoy. Since the program is no longer just a conglomeration of vaudeville acts but presents a basic story line for each edition, he no longer attempts to monopolize the cameras by throwing himself into each act. He's still the master showman upstaging his guests every time.

A surprise hit on the show this season is Ruthie Gilbert, who plays Berle's everloving but dim-witted secretary, Maxie. Her "Don't fight this, Milton— it's bigger than both of us" has already become a TV classic. She's a first-rate comedienne and one of the best foils Berle has had. Bobby Sherwood also contributes to the fun and ventriloquist Jimmy Nelson, who has replaced pitchman Sid Stone on the Texaco commercial, carries out the comedy theme.

Goodman Ace, one of the best writers in the business, heads Berle's large stable of writers and his proficient comedy touch is everywhere apparent. But it's still Milton himself who pulls the strings to round each program into shape. As producer, idea-man and general factotum, he rates the boost in ratings the show has achieved this year. The sponsor is dropping out at the end of this season because the budget has hit a new peak, but the program will undoubtedly return in the fall.

The production numbers are stand-out, complete with a bevy of pretty and leggy dancers. Among Berle's recent guests, all of whom pitched in on his shenanigans, were Gertrude Berg (Molly Goldberg), Marguerite Piazza, Broderick Crawford and Frank Sinatra.

CAPSULE

What's the Story? Just another in the top-heavy list of panel quiz programs now inundating TV. Walter Kiernan is moderator, with New York newspapermen and critics as panelists. (DuMont, Thursday.) Kiernan reads the four panelists a group of facts from which they must guess what famous story he has in mind. If they don't, someone wins a prize, ho, hum.

CRITIQUES

OZZIE Nelson and his wife, Harriet Hilliard, are fine but their sons, Ricky and David, steal the show on Ozzie and Harriet, the refreshingly light-hearted situation comedy show about their true-to-life family (ABC, Friday). As a matter of fact, Ricky, the younger grabs most of the honors as the pint-sized cynic who continually mocks his brother's budding love life. All in all one of TV's better programs.—R. S.

Beauty

Care of the eyebrows is one of the important requirements of good grooming for all women.

If you are uncertain as to your most flattering line, draw in experimental lines with an eyebrow pencil, and pluck to the line that suits you. Using a black or brown pencil, or blend the two to copy the exact color of your eyebrow hair.

Apply strokes lightly, in the direction your hairs grow, imitating the short hairs, and making sure that the strokes are darker and lighter to give a less artificial effect. Use pencil to extend the line either way.

Brown or black mascara may be used to intensify the brow, but be careful not to get a gummy effect. Brush eyebrows every night, apply cream if they are thick and unruly. A touch of cream after makeup will make them gleam.

Eye shadow beautifies the eye by emphasizing its natural color. Blue eyes should wear blue or blue-gray; gray eyes, blue-gray or green; brown eyes, violet or green or blue.

Eye shadow should be applied by dotting on a speck over each eyelid in its center portion and down near the roots of the lashes. Blend it with fingers or a brush. Concentrate the color near the lashes. Do not carry a trace of color beyond eyebrow's end.

Eye shadow, carefully applied, is permissible for daytime wear, although tints always should be subtle.

is too late . . . . .

Say it's twenty minutes past nine. You switch on the television set, later than usual, for some reason. You find, disappointingly, that a show you would have been very interested in is more than half over. Twenty after is too late.
